WOMEN IN AMIA TOWNHALL

KEY POINTS

Participants in the Town Hall discussion overall raised key issues and suggestions on action that the society or individual subgroups of AMIA could address.

Key points included:

- Serious concerns about AMIA's position statement related to the US SCOPUS ruling. Perceived as an attempt to remain neutral but in doing so, the messaging did not read that way and was not neutral.
- The focus of responses should be on changes: what is our purpose, our action? For example, experts within AMIA could potentially contribute to the issues of privacy and regulatory issues, or advocate for users of technological applications to be aware of how to protect their own data.
- There are challenges to translating the perspectives and concerns of diverse AMIA constituencies (e.g., committees, working groups, etc.) into appropriate action(s). Such actions could be delegated or identified as actions that either AMIA as an organization could address, or individual members or leaders can address. Ideas were suggested.

CONSIDERATION OF NEXT STEPS

- Location selections that ensure venue choices do not marginalize AMIA members
- We must focus our discussion of issues as informaticists. How do we improve the experience for all?
- Safe leadership mentorship resource or "Safe Sounding Board" to assist members in connecting with experienced, trusted women
- AMIA becoming a "trusted third party" for advocacy among members and other organizations
- AMIA Board of Directors working on crisis communications procedures to allow for prompt responses. Members can contact an AMIA Board member directly with concerns, and/or WIA Steering Committee co-chairs with specific follow-up concerns or questions.

PURPOSE

The purpose of this Town Hall was to foster a safe space for women members of AMIA to ask questions of AMIA leaders, express concerns, and engage in mutually respectful and constructive dialogue regarding how AMIA could best support women informatics professionals on challenges and issues related to the U.S. Supreme Court Ruling, Dobbs v. Jackson Women's Health Organization. AMIA is a member-driven organization, so member comments, volunteership and leadership are key to guiding the response of the society in specific and actionable ways.

FUTURE TOWN HALLS

In reflecting on the Town Hall and summary, Women in AMIA Steering Committee members noted that the Town Hall is a starting point for future continuing discussions on the important issues raised.

AWARDS & NOMINATIONS

RECOGNITION

Women in AMIA Awards and Leadership Subcommittee is happy to celebrate another great year of female leadership in informatics to exemplify the female leaders in our field. This year, we have three female colleagues recognized by the AMIA signature awards, and another three awarded the AMIA leadership awards. Our subcommittee is a proud sponsor of multiple award packages and would like to celebrate not only the winners but also anyone willing to put themselves forward for nomination. Leadership is for those who show up! Please help us fill in the form to kick off another round of nominations for next year!

CALL FOR PARTICIPATION

Women in AMIA Awards and Leadership subcommittee need your help! Please click here to express interest in joining us to promote current and future informatics leaders.

Do you know someone who deserves to be recognized by an award but has not had the opportunity to be nominated? Please click here to let us know!

Congratulations to all of the AMIA Award Recipients with a special acknowledgment to Hongfang Liu, PhD, FACMI - Donald A.B. Lindberg Award for Innovation in Informatics; Patricia Hinton Walker, PhD, RN, FAAN, MCC, - Virginia K. Saba Informatics Award; Licong Cui, PhD - New Investigator Award; and AMIA Leadership Awards - Deborah Ariosto, PhD, RN-BC, FAMIA, Jane M. Carrington, PhD, RN, FAAN, FAMIA, and Lynda R. Hardy, PhD, RN, FAAN.

CALL FOR PAPERS

REPRODUCTIVE INFORMATICS: IMPLICATIONS FOR WOMEN'S HEALTH AND INFORMED CHOICE

JOURNAL OF MEDICAL INTERNET RESEARCH (JMIR)

The Journal of Medical Internet Research is inviting submissions to a theme issue examining the role of health information technologies in promoting and protecting reproductive health decisions. In this theme issue (e-collection), the focus is on the impact of the US Supreme Court ruling—and similar laws like it in countries around the world—on technology, digital health, and informatics.

The Call for Papers is available here:
